

Above left: Shoppers surfeited with beautiful objects can fortify their spirits at the renowned Le Restaurant—one of Southern California's finest. 8475 Melrose Place.

Above: An eighteenth-century French four-part buffet "à deux corps" and an English side table, both in hand-carved oak, hold assorted nineteenth-century Chinese porcelain vases, urns, cachepots, and jardinières. A French hand-carved caneback chair and a Chinese porcelain garden seat, both nineteenth century, complement the setting. A pair of bronze cloisonné incense burners and a nineteenth-century Chinese vase embossed with ancestral figures and converted to a lamp sit atop the table. Finally, a French nineteenth-century bronze and crystal chandelier finishes the scene. At Paul Ferrante, 8464 Melrose Place.
